

Seetec Pluss Employment Support Case Study

The Brief

- Seetec Pluss are a leading provider of work and wellbeing services enabling people, businesses and communities to thrive across the UK.
- They came to us during the Covid 19 pandemic as they were looking to partner with a training provider who could deliver courses for participants referred to them by the Department of Work and Pensions.
- They were looking for a local organisation who could train people who were looking for work, and as there was huge demand for forklift operators in the area, we were a natural fit.

The Solution

- Seetec were working with participants who had been unemployed for a long time and were understandably nervous about entering a classroom environment. Some had been made redundant during the pandemic and had never previously considered having to find alternative work.
- They therefore needed someone who could be flexible, understanding, compassionate and adaptable to the varying needs of their participants.
- We offered them this flexibility and welcomed the opportunity to work with people who might need a bit more support. We believe that everyone has the right to live a decent and dignified life, and finding rewarding work is a huge part of this.
- Because of our links to local job agencies, we were also able to offer a referral to the job agencies actively looking for staff at the end of their course.

The Results

- We have been able to re-train people to give them a difference skill set and are an integral part of the employment support that Seetec offers.
- Together, we've been able to help people find real jobs which has been a huge benefit for Seetec Pluss, their participants and the wider community. Many have found work within a few weeks of their training ending.
- Our work with Seetec continues and has developed. We now support a huge range of people with a variety of needs, from language issues, literacy challenges to health and disability issues.
- With our years of experience in delivering tailored training, they trust us to help and support their participants throughout their time with us, regardless of their unique requirements.

The Customer

- Seetec Pluss helps thousands of people every year to take ownership over their future by helping them into work, develop new skills or make more positive choices. Founded in 1984, the company has grown by focusing on creating sustainable and lasting change for the people it supports.
- They work closely with their participants, commissioners, local communities and businesses to empower people to feel good, find work, gain independence and take control of their lives.
